

“FIREMEN ”

My heroes are the firemen, because are courageous men, who put their lives in danger to save the ones of other people. Unfortunately many times some of these men lose their lives, as it happened in America in the attack to the Twin Towers, or other cases. They have died to save others' lives, even if they knew that however they would have died they have not hesitated in helping the next one. Many have left wives and children, others have seriously remained wounded and it is for this that I consider them as worthy to be called heroes, they have done and still do today all they can in all the world for the people who are in difficulty, even if this could kill them, they are ready to help anyone who needs. Here again: these are my heroes.
